LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL

Our rookies showed the old vets (who warmed the bench) they could come home with a victory. They came from behind 5-0 to take Swallow 8-5. Grin Diede and Metz Metzger combined their sliders and change of pace to Scooter Poole and with a big shake up in the field we came up with a fair club. Irish O'Rourke saved the day with a beautiful catch in centre field when the bases were loaded. Ronn Permann slapped a dandy triple to left field to start the Carbon boys rolling. Scooter Poole drove in four runs for the local boys. Fans it was a good ball game and for some more of the same drop around Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. and watch these clubs go at it tooth and nail. Tomorrow we journey to Trochu for the All-Star game. This will separate the men from the boys to see who will represent the Prairie Little League in the Alberta Tournament. Hope all of you can come and cheer the lads to victory. Support means more to these kids than anything.

Bob and Dick Garrett and Roland Harsch left Mon. June 26 for a ten day holiday, stopping at Spokane, Wash. and Grand Coulee Dam and other points in the U.S.A. and visiting the Garrett boys Aunt and Uncle Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Brown at Kimberley, also stopping at Radium Hot Springs and Banff on their way home.

Hospital Patients include Sharon Poole and Mrs. Harry Hunt in Drumheller.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McLeod of Montreal are visiting Don's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McLeod.

SHRIMP FISHERY

Most of mankind has settled in valleys and low plains, not more than 600 feet above sea level, and here most of the large cities are located. Hardly more than a tenth of the world's population lives at elevations above 1,500 feet.

CULTURE PEARLS

So-called culture pearls are produced by oysters in which small beads have been placed to stimulate the growing of pearls.

DELICACY

Natives of South America eat the eggs of the lizard known as the iguana. These eggs are considered a great delicacy.

SENIOR SUPPING

Older people who are in good health do not require a special diet but some of their eating habits may be in need of change. After forty, most people need less food, since body functions slow down and it is more important to eat for health than for energy. There is some interesting and helpful information on this subject in a booklet entitled "Healthful Eating" which is available from local or provincial health departments.

Visit the Tree Planting Car

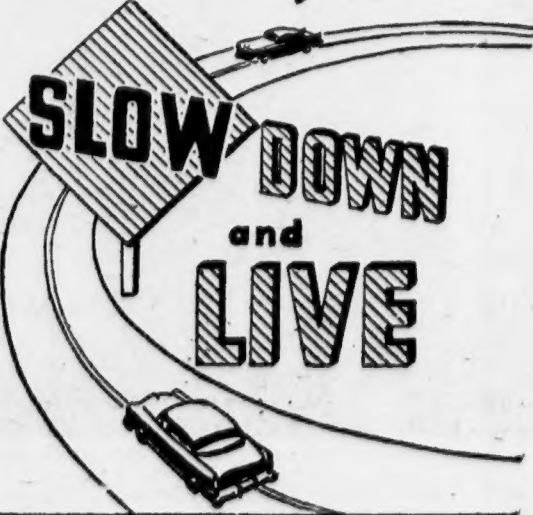

Meetings are held in the Car at each point on the itinerary, at eight o'clock in the evening. When schools are open, arrangements are made with the school authorities to have the Pupils visit the car during school hours. Sound films show the results obtained by farming people through planting trees, and give practical instruction in tree planting and home beautification. An illustrated talk covers planting methods, which trees to plant, the laying out of a shelter belt, and planning the home ground, with information on the care of trees and shrubs. A question period follows each evening meeting.

New Nassau House: Hope for alcoholics

Nassau House — a dignified, three-storey home in a quiet Winnipeg residential street—stands as an active symbol in the fight against the scourge of alcoholism.

Opened May 23 as a domicile for alcoholics who need accommodation while becoming socially rehabilitated, the home at 100 Nassau street is run by the Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba in conjunction with its out-patient department at nearby 124 Nassau, headquarters of the organization.

The home will serve as a domicile for 10 people to start with. They will be free to come and go to look for work, to visit the out-patient department, or to occupy themselves with any activity leading to their ultimate restoration to society.

It is one of three such centres in Canada. One at Vancouver has facilities for nine people, while one in Toronto can handle 15, some of whom are bed patients. In Manitoba, bed cases will be treated in hospitals.

The centre is not a clinic in the medical sense, says executive director Ross Mounce; rather, it complements medical treatment and the work of such organizations as A.A. in fighting the disease of alcoholism on four fronts: physical, psychological, spiritual and social.

The very nature of the centre, with its counselling and therapy services, makes it imperative that only those who have shown a sincere desire to overcome their problem of alcoholism can be accepted. Most referrals are from doctors, with others from clergymen, employers and families.

At present, the Foundation has a staff of seven, three being qualified counsellors who have attended the course in alcohol studies at Yale university, and the remaining four handling the heavy volume of administration and operation of the home. A fourth counsellor will be added later this summer following completion of a course at Yale.

Rehabilitation of an alcoholic is a long-term task. Mr. Mounce envisages it could take up to three years or more. The first part of this time would involve, where necessary, domicile at Nassau House with attendant counselling and group therapy and, later, counselling sessions at 124 Nassau with the family. From then on the sick alcoholic might come for counselling on an out-patient basis—frequently for the first few months (during which time he is encouraged to enroll with an A.A. group) and, finally, every few months during the last year or two.

The Foundation, formed in 1956 on recommendation of the Bracken Liquor Inquiry Commission, is an outgrowth of the Committee on Alcoholism, established four years earlier. The Foundation gets about 80 percent of its financial support from the provincial government and the remainder from donations.

So far at the out-patient department, there has been about a 60 percent effectiveness in the rehabilitation of alcoholics, who have shown a sincere desire to recover. Mr. Mounce feels this might increase when more and more people—and the alcoholics themselves—come to accept alcoholism as a disease. Most alcoholics and problem drinkers, he said, are protecting their jobs, trying to avoid the stigma which accompanies this illness, and in their own ignorance are endeavouring to fight a hopeless battle with a growing and continuing problem which they do not understand.

Mr. Mounce said that as an educational program becomes increasingly effective, the demand for counselling and other treatment services increases proportionately. "A recovered alcoholic," he continued, "is a more convincing proof to his friends, relative and employer than all the literature available on the subject that proper treatment can be effective."

Story of our times in New York Times

Industrial-Manitoba went on parade before well over a million readers when a 20-page supplement of the influential New York Times told the story of our progress.

And reaction was immediate. Within two days of publication, business and industrial inquiries began coming into the department of industry and commerce. First letter was from a New York architect who, impressed by our current growth and future prospects, wants to establish here.

The edition contained 15 major articles—principally industrial—a number of picture displays and five full-color pages.

Industry and commerce minister Hon. F. L. Jobin said the province itself had purchased 25,000 copies of the paper for direct distribution to senior executives and businessmen in eastern Canada, the U.S., United Kingdom and Europe, as well as to trade commissioners the world over. All manufacturing and wholesale concerns in Manitoba will get copies.

Mr. Jobin said the normal circulation of the paper, together with the extra copies being sent key personnel with powers of decision, provided a useful medium for telling the Manitoba story. He said the supplement, supported by Manitoba advertising, was part of the province's overall development program.

In a foreword to the large supplement, Premier Douglas Campbell said the province offered many inducements for the prudent and profitable introduction of investment capital. He added that the current economy of Manitoba, "reacting to the development of vast natural resources, now provides diverse opportunities for the establishment of new industries, both large and small.

He noted that "the raw materials and the markets within Manitoba itself, together with the benefits which stem from enlightened tax policies, favor the development of attractive margins of profit for those enterprises endowed with efficient and aggressive leadership."

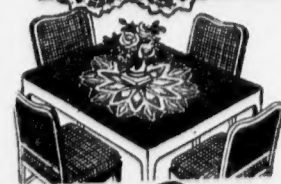

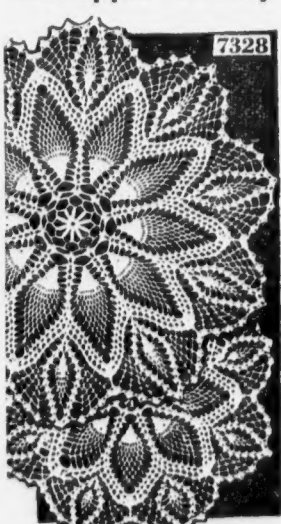

DIVES FARTHEST

The loon can dive under water probably farther than any other bird. Dives of 50 feet have been observed.

FIRST AID FOR BURNS

A person suffering from burns is in urgent need of first aid. Until medical aid arrives, the patient should be kept warm, and his clothing need not be removed. Any clothing stuck to the burned area should not be pulled off. Blisters must not be broken. Cover burned area with sterile dressing. Very small burns need only cleansing with water and application of a sterile dressing.

Use carefully weed-killing chemicals

Chemicals such as 2,4-D, MCP, 2, 4, 5-T, etc., although non-poisonous, non-flammable and non-corrosive, can, and sometimes do, severely damage sensitive crops. Such damage usually results from thoughtlessness or carelessness on the part of the spray operator, mainly through drift (spray or dust) and to a lesser extent by volatilization (vapor fumes).

Sensitive plants include tomatoes, sunflowers, soybeans, cauliflower, cabbage, sugar beets, Manitoba maple, rapeseed, and many ornamental trees and shrubs.

The standard (2,4-D) esters volatilize, or give off fumes, for some time after application and may be carried by air currents for considerable distances. These fumes may cause serious damage to susceptible crops. Low volatile esters, amines and sodium salts do not give off fumes, hence, are much safer to use where susceptible crops are grown.

Precautions

1. Follow carefully, the instructions found on the label.
2. Do not apply herbicides on a windy day. Evening and early morning are usually most satisfactory for their application due to low wind velocity and high humidity.
3. Where sensitive crops are grown, the following additional precautions are suggested:
 - (a) Use a boom sprayer, not an aircraft or a ground duster.
 - (b) Use the amine or sodium salt rather than the ester formulation.
 - (c) Keep the pressure low, not over 30 lbs.
 - (d) Never apply weed killer when the spray or dust will be carried by the wind to sensitive crops.
 - (e) Avoid using a sprayer contaminated with 2,4-D or similar type chemicals for applying insecticides or other materials to sensitive crops or plants.

Arnprior editor heads new E.O. Weeklies group

The Eastern Ontario Weekly Newspapers Association came into being at an organization meeting held Saturday at Ottawa. It will embrace weekly newspapers in that part of the province East of Deep River in the north and Belleville to the south. Its purpose is to promote the welfare of weekly newspapers and the communities in which they are located, as well as Eastern Ontario as a whole.

R. S. Atkey, publisher of The Arnprior Chronicle, was elected first president of the association. John Morris, editor of The Prescott Journal, is vice-president, and Don MacCuaig, publisher of The Renfrew Advance, is secretary-treasurer.

The directors are: Reg. Workman, The Winchester Press; Keith Graham, The Chesterville Record; Eugene Macdonald, The Glengarry News.

Mr. Atkey, chairman of the organizing committee, was voted to the chair and the first order of business was study and adoption of a constitution. Then followed the election of officers and general discussion on future plans.

Some 16 editors and publishers present were entertained at a reception and dinner by officials of the E. B. Eddy Company of Ottawa and Hull. — The Glengarry News, Alexandria, Ont., May 29, 1958.

Crushed under truck box; dies instantly

Shortly after 10 o'clock on Wednesday night, May 7th, Donald Barry Paull, 28, of Rosetown, was crushed between the box and frame of a two ton truck on the farm six miles southeast of Rosetown, and died instantly.

His father and brother, Robert, found him about 7 a.m. on Thursday morning when they visited the farm. He was married and has a son, Donald Trevor. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Paull of Rosetown. — The Eagle, Rosetown, Sask., May 8, 1958.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of stories about tourist attractions in Saskatchewan's parkland and forest regions.

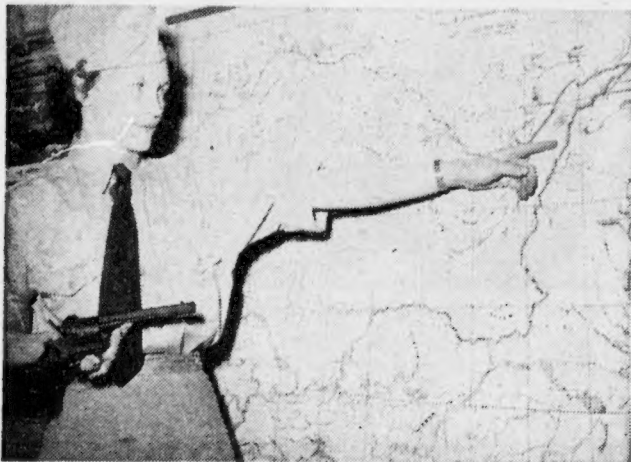

The scarlet-coated riders are gone. So are the war-like Indians and the high-booted, rifle-toting, sod-busting settlers. But Fort Battleford stands, breaking the horizon between prairie and sky, a lasting monument to the men who tamed the early West.

It is quiet and serene about the Fort, now. Cotton puffs of cloud drift lazily across the sky, lending a pastoral quality to the scene. The nine-pounder cannon in the courtyard that once belched smoke and fire and lead speaks no more. This is a peaceful place for tourists to come.

Fort Battleford was the fifth of the great bastions of law and order to appear in the Canadian West. It was established by Sub-Inspector James Walker, of the North West Mounted Police, in the summer of 1876.

Only five of the buildings erected during the early days of the fort remain today. Repairing of these buildings and reconstruction of the stockade was carried out during the late 1940's, and in 1951, the fort became a National Historic Park.

Old Fort Battleford figured in one of the most tumultuous periods of Saskatchewan's early historical development. It was in the year 1885, when implacable elements of Plains Indians, and their half-brothers, the Metis, took up arms against Canadian authority in the Riel Rebellion.

On March 30, 1885, war-whooping bands of Cree and Stoney Indians from nearby reserves, led by the doughty Poundmaker, swooped down on the town of old Battleford, below the fort, on the banks of the Battle River. Terrified townsfolk and settlers in the district rushed into the fort for refuge.

The Indians pillaged the town and would have attacked the fort were it not for a seven-pounder artillery piece which they sorely feared, and the cool courage of the Mounties which they greatly respected.

Mementos of the Rebellion and the early days of the Force are on view, today, in the fort buildings. In the guardroom, there's Poundmaker's war axe and a .38 calibre pin-fire Lefacheau revolver, which belonged to Gabriel Dumont, Riel's military leader in the uprising.

Another building contains uniforms of the Force, used from 1876, until the post was abandoned in 1924; another, copies of the Saskatchewan Herald, the first newspaper published west of Winnipeg.

Still another houses colorful war bonnets, and antique guns, including a "cap and ball" revolver taken from whiskey smugglers captured by the NWMP near Moosomin, in 1890. The gun was reputed to have been used in the Custer Massacre.

The treasures within the walls of old Fort Battleford give the modern-day visitor a vivid picture of how the people of the early Northwest lived; how they dressed, thought and acted. Old Fort Battleford is a page in early history come alive.

Age and experience

(The Times, Morden, Man.)

In some way the older people have become the forgotten citizens of the last few decades.

One reason has been the movement of population from farm to city. On farms there seems more room for old people and more work for them to do. As the report of the Gordon royal commission on Canada's economic prospects put it: "Old farmers are rather like old soldiers, if they sometimes die, they seldom retire."

Another reason is the change in city dwellings. Families once lived in roomy houses with a yard and garden plot, but no central heating. Many chores were needed to be performed. But the roomy, old-fashioned house is giving way either to the apartment or the small home chock full of labor-saving appliances and designed for the young family.

In such a home there is often just no place for the old relative who is moved to an institution or suffers a worse fate, described thus in the commission's report:

"In spite of social security measures and the efforts of charity, there are still old people slowly dying in back bedrooms on which the rent is long overdue."

The problem has been increased by the tendency, since the Second World War, for retirement of workers at a stated age. More often than not, it is compulsory retirement.

Nevertheless, there are indications that they may be restored to the place of dignity and importance merited by their age, wisdom and skills.

Church and welfare groups are forming senior citizens' clubs where older people can get together. Some groups are building low-rent housing units where husband and wife can spend their last years together. Industry seems on the verge of rediscovering the productive value of experience, as when retired persons are hired again in the role of trusted messengers.

We're most fortunate in Morden for having a group of citizens who have taken an interest in the welfare of our senior citizens by providing adequate living quarters for elderly couples in the construction of Tabor Home for Senior Citizens, besides the Tabor Home for the Aged.

The closing hours

(The Journal, Humboldt, Sask.)

Humboldt's new bylaw governing hours of closing was given third reading and passed into the bylaws of the town Monday night, (although there is some opinion that it was passed not strictly according to legal procedure and a test case might prove interesting).

As it now stands all business places must close at seven o'clock Saturday nights, except during the week before Christmas and the night before a public or civic holiday when they can remain open until nine p.m.

We are still convinced that those who sponsored the petition acted unwisely. In fact, a number of those who signed the petition now agree they did so unwisely and are actually opposed to it now.

We are still convinced that hours of closing should be a matter for the individual to determine aside from the provincial limitations. We see no reason why, because one businessman wishes to close earlier, those same hours should be forced on another who is willing to keep open a few hours later. It is definitely an infringement on free enterprise, and free enterprise has enough limitations and restrictions as it is.

We believe that it will not be too long before most businessmen who asked for the earlier closing will rue the day they signed their name to the petition and will possibly be asking that the bylaw be again changed.

However, the law is the law. And if all businesses can abide by it without feeling they are hurting their business and losing customers, well and good. But if any one businessman takes a customer into his shop during hours when he is supposed to be closed then he is breaking the law and admitting that what we have been trying to get across these past weeks and months is right. And he is breaking the law, no matter what service he is giving the customer nor how urgent or necessary it may appear to be.

Frankly, we know that almost every business place in town will be guilty at some time or another and a charge could be laid almost every day of the week, including Sunday!

That's the spirit

(The News, Indian Head, Sask.)

We liked this editorial written by Tom Kearns of Kipling, defeated Liberal candidate in the recent election:

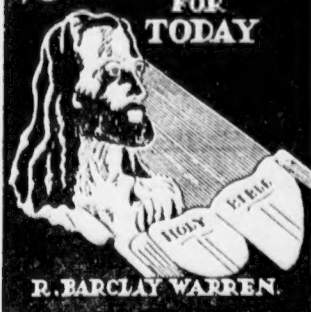

Regardless of what party wins an election, the country needs good government and all should hope that it gets it.

"Die-hard" party beliefs must give way to hopes, even prayers, that the government will have a successful term in office. No one can afford to sit back for four or five years and hope that things go wrong for a party which he didn't support. Those four or five years are too important in the lifetime of a person, if not in the lifetime of a country.

There was a time, in a slower-moving world; when a term of office of a government meant less than it does today. But today, when predictions as to what other countries may do tomorrow may be wrong in a matter of hours. Warnings must be given in time to prevent failure—not withheld so as to allow cries of "I told you so!"

The election results show that Canada's new government has a lot of people behind it. It will need us all behind it to solve some of the big problems.

SPIRITUAL STRENGTH FOR TODAY

R. BARCLAY WARREN.

MELODY TO THE LORD

She was born in London, England, and died in London, Ont., last month in her 89th year. During her last months Mrs. DeMille was cared for in the home of her only daughter, a minister's wife. Her son, a missionary in Portuguese East Africa was unable to come home. Another preacher son, from Seattle, Wash., was with her for the last five days. One of the sons, a leading layman in his church, was telling me how his mother would sing at her work in the kitchen. Sometimes the boys would say, "Don't sing so loud, Mother. The neighbors will hear you." But she kept on singing. It was in her heart. Now as one looks at her children and grandchildren in their service for the Kingdom of God, one concludes that she was in the true sense, a mother in Israel.

We are reminded of the words of Paul to the church at Ephesus, chapter 5, verses 18-20. "And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit; speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." Some people who have no gift for singing still make melody in their heart to the Lord. It gives rhythm to the life and a smile to the countenance. One is lifted in spirit when in their presence.

What a contrast to rock 'n' roll. It is supposed to be melody, too. But it isn't "to the Lord." It is to "sex". Only recently on seeing a sampling of the hits in print did I realize what blatant invitations to sexual misbehaviour are in the words. No wonder that Boston and others cities have banned rock 'n' roll jam sessions. Music can be judged by its fruits. Missionaries have said that it is an import from the jungle. It has in it a beat and rhythm which heathen peoples use to excite men and women into uninhibited frenzy. In place of melodious strains the music becomes screaming tones and raucous beat—almost always accompanied by wildest gesticulations. Its avowed purpose is to build toward an abandonment of restraint, a complete letting go of the sensual self.

My friend, Bob Andrews, writing in Youth in Action says, "Music always creates a mood or motivates to some kind of action. Hymns of the Church lift and inspire to worship God. Soft-sung lullabys sprinkle sand on tiny tots' eyelids." What does rock n' roll do?

As we yield to Jesus Christ we find harmony with God. Then we can sing with the Psalmist, "He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God." Psalm 40:3

1958 Angling regulations

Manitoba anglers will find little change in the 1958 Angling Regulations as compared with those issued last year. License fees remain the same, creel limits are unchanged, and the open seasons follow closely those of 1957. One exception is the extension of the open season to October 31st for lake trout and speckled trout in Clearwater, Cranberry, and Athapapuskow Lakes.

Two significant additions have been made to the pamphlet. One is a road map showing the areas in which the various species are located. This should be particularly helpful to anglers from outside the province. The second innovation shows how a fish should be measured.

Fish Hatcheries Preserve Canada's Reputation Keep Country Anglers' Paradise

At White Lake rearing ponds a truck is loaded with its precious cargo. Every year the success of such re-stocking measures pays off in the ever-increasing numbers of sportsmen who are attracted to Canada's lakes and streams. A study of the effects of overcrowding has led to the removal of the size limit on pickerel and bass although the 7" limitation on trout remains in most parts of the country.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Chris Lund.

Canada is one of the world's great sport fishing countries and carefully controlled programs of research and preservation are regularly carried out in many parts of the country to maintain her reputation as an angler's paradise.

Restocking lakes by aerial planting of yearlings has proved very successful in recent years; many hitherto inaccessible lakes may now be reached by aircraft.

Research into the type of food required by different varieties of fish is carried out at Canada's fish hatcheries. Speckled trout (shown above) formerly fed a diet of ground liver now thrive better on a pelleted seed food.

Speckled trout are placed in specially designed containers for distribution; each can holds about 500 yearlings. Careful handling keeps fish mortality at an absolute minimum.

Orchardist fed up with war, Jupp told on Soviet farm

Speaking to S.I.A. delegates and wives here, Alex Jupp gave his impressions of Russia during a 25-day trip in the Soviet Union last summer. He accompanied his talk with slides.

He had not, he said, gone into the agricultural picture there to any great extent, as all but a few of his days were spent in Moscow. However, he had noted that 96 percent of all Russian farms are collectivized or state operated. It appeared that equipment lagged somewhat behind that in the western world, with farm trucks heavily supported by animal-drawn vehicles.

The collectivized farm he had visited was of about 10,000 acres, supporting some 3,600 people. These were formed into work brigades according to ability and experience. Quotas were set in all departments, and even in the cow barns charts on the wall indicated what production was expected of each cow.

The workers were happy, he stated, and appeared to be content to be working together toward common goals.

He had not been permitted to go into any of the houses on the farm, which were finished primitively on the outside, sometimes of log construction. On the farms, the amount of taxes to be paid was tied directly to production.

Mr. Jupp stated that in Moscow, a city of some seven million, great masses of people were in evidence nearly all the time. Numbers of new housing units were being built, but it appeared evident that housing was not high on the priority list. For the most part, old apartments were crowded, with one family to a room.

He noted that great pains were made to keep the city streets clean, with batches of women with antiquated brooms regularly on the job of street sweeping. There was an on-the-spot fine for littering a street.

Women, it was observed, were handling every conceivable job, from construction to truck driving. Television was provided in even the most humble homes, possibly as an additional means of government communication and propaganda. A television set in Russia costs about as much as suit of clothes, Mr. Jupp stated.

A sidelight on what some older people there may be thinking was his conversation with an orchardist, who hoped the West wouldn't make war on the Russian people as his orchards had been ruined several times during the last war.

Members of Indian Head Ladies' Chorus directed by Mrs. John Walker received hearty rounds of applause for their contribution to

Range named for Sir Winston

A photograph of a rugged range of peaks in Jasper National Park named in October, 1956, in honor of world famous statesman Sir Winston Churchill has been presented to Sir Winston by the Province of Alberta.

The Sir Winston Churchill Range covers an area of 200 square miles immediately to the south of the Queen Elizabeth ranges. It is bounded on the south by the Columbia Icefield, on the east by the Sunwapta River and on the west by the Athabasca River.—The News, Sylvan Lake, Alta.

Wedding Bells

HEMPEL-KIPRICK

A recent morning ceremony was solemnized at St. Mary's Church in Beiseker where Miss Mary Kiprick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kiprick, Beiseker, became the bride of Mr. Harvey Peter Hempel, son of Mrs. Anne Hempel, Beiseker. Rev. Father Tennant performed the wedding rites.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a white floor length gown featuring a bouffant skirt which was poised over hoops, fell in bridal satin and tiers of tulle and lace. French lace formed the bodice. It featured a straight front neckline with long lily point sleeves. From her dainty headdress of pleated lace and net misted a fingertip veil finished in Italian embroidery. Her only jewellery was a pair of rhinestone earrings, a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Marie Schwengler, cousin of the bride. She wore a pink floor length gown, featuring a strapless bodice which was covered with a bolero jacket of tulle and lace. She wore a matching headpiece and gloves and carried a bouquet of blue carnations and white daisies.

Bridesmaid Miss Delores Silbernagel wore an identical gown of sky blue and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white daisies.

Best man was Mr. Mervin Hempel, brother of the groom. The groom's other attendant was Mr. Edward Kiprick, brother of the bride. Ushering the guests were Mr. Simon Schwengler and Mr. Donald Fischer.

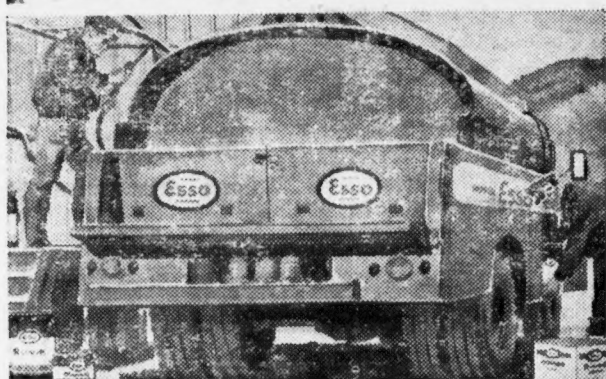

The wedding music was played by Miss Janet Lavoie.

The reception was held in the Beiseker Memorial Hall where about 100 guests attended. Rev. Father Tennant proposed the toast to the bride.

Mr. William Berreth supplied the music for a bit of dancing after the reception.

Upon their return the couple will reside in Beiseker.

WAS THE BALOGNA TASTY?

—DID YOU SWALLOW IT?

We would like the ratepayers of the Kneehill M.D. to read the following ad which we were unable to have printed in the Municipal Paper at Three Hills as it refuted the statements made in the June 19th editorial.

In answer to the editorial in the June 19th issue of the Capital (which we ask you to re-read) we would say:

Firstly—we have no argument with the Editor of the Capital as we realize he must defend the Council which subsidizes the paper.

Secondly—Things which are unnecessary may be costly at $1. If there were two railroads to Alberta's northland or two St. Lawrence Seaways another would be unnecessary. So a third Seed Cleaning Plant is an unnecessary expense to ratepayers who pay one-third the cost and to taxpayers who help pay one-third the cost through the Government Grant.

Thirdly—Since when would the show of hands at a meeting be termed unanimous and why should a local majority at a meeting decide the policy for over 2,000 ratepayers. We should be glad they didn't vote on a motion to pave the streets of Three Hills or purchase subscriptions to the Moscow Minutes.

Fourthly—The purchase of this and that and the other thing is usually done by tender and not without a little enquiry at any rate. The M.D. now has a newspaper, soon a seed cleaning plant. Why not enter into business on a big scale?—Municipal Lumber Yard, Municipal Insurance, Municipal Machinery Agency, Municipal Garage and so on.

Fifthly—Trochu has a seed cleaning plant through private enterprise. As for ourselves, we propose a scheme which would not hurt any newspaper in this M.D., and sent it in an open letter for publication on April 7th. We did not want to be subsidized by the M.D. nor tell any ratepayer he must take the Tribune.

Sixthly—This will be our rebuttal and "finis" as our open letters are quashed by the Council and at $10 an ad, talk is too expensive.
